

ASSIST Transfer Channel

The Official Newsletter of ASSIST

Seventh Edition — October 2007

On Campus

The “On Campus” feature looks at transfer programs and practices at colleges and universities throughout the state. Each issue of the ASSIST Transfer Channel focuses on a different college or university. In this edition, Aurelia Long talks about articulation news at the University of California, Berkeley.

Greetings from Cal! I am pleased to announce my new position as UC Berkeley’s Articulation Officer. My previous UC articulation experience includes serving as UC Davis’ ASSIST/Articulation Coordinator where I worked with many of you in support of articulation efforts. Part of my interest in working in articulation is that I admire transfer students for their tenacity and diligence in pursuing a university degree. As you know, students utilize the Articulation Agreements by Major displayed on ASSIST at www.assist.org to plan their course work. Currently, we are in the process of reviewing and updating the agreements for the 2007-2008 academic year, and you should expect to see these published on ASSIST by the end of October. While there are no new majors to report, there are updates to the lower-division requirements of some of the 100+ majors which you will be able to view once the new agreements are published. In addition, the community college articulation officers will be provided details of curricular changes through the CIAC list service within the next few days.

I am committed to expanding the articulation of courses between your community college and Cal to facilitate students’ transition and reduce their time to degree at the University. As such, I encourage community college Articulation Officers to submit UC-transferable courses for review. I look forward to working with all of you to increase articulation at UC Berkeley!

California Community College Articulation Officers, please send your course outlines via e-mail to Aurelia Long, aplong@berkeley.edu and/or Myrna Aguilar, myrnaa@berkeley.edu, or by U.S. mail to:

Office of Undergraduate Admissions
University of California, 110 Sproul Hall
Berkeley, CA 94720-5800

Aurelia Long
Articulation Officer
UC Berkeley Office of Undergraduate Admissions